Two Aussie musicians from the band, "The Flamin' Bloody Drongos", unbelievably clueless, venture to LA and stumble from one mad cap calamity to another in their quest for the holy grail of being..."Rock Gods!"

Dumb and Dumber meets Spinal Tap.

"Typical Hollywood fantasy. There is NO WAY any of this is true. How could anybody be so dumb?. I strongly deny any of this actually happened." - Joe (Lead singer and guitarist of the band, The Flamin' Bloody Drongos).

"I mean, some parts of it may have actually happened, but come' on, Hollywood changes things, BIG TIME. We weren't THAT STUPID. It's ridiculous. I very strongly deny any of this actually happened." - Hev (Drummer of the band, The Flamin' Bloody Drongos)

"Y'know some of this could have happened, but I was never so obsessed about my hair. Yes, I agree that I have beautiful hair 'n' all and lots of people tell me HOW WONDERFUL MY MANE IS... and I know that. But, I think they went just a bit too far. I feel that none on this actually really happened - know what I mean?" - Woolie - former bass player, currently working in a hairdressing salon.

"Some parts of this could have possibly happened, but come on, who would believe that I am a CONNIVING, CUNNING AND MANIPULATING Producer, preying on the naiveté of new bands for my own greed and gain. In all honesty, I can say that none of the events depicted here, actually happened in real life" - Eskimo Quinn - Producer
